MANY NEGROES MOVE AWAY

FEW WHITES ARRESTED IN THE WEST SIDE RACE RIOTING.

Incidents of the Fighting Yesterday Morn ing-Inspector Walter Thompson Takes Charge of the Twentieth Precinct and Orders His Men to Bring to the Station All Rioters, Dead or Alive-100 Extra Police Were Put on Duty Last Night.

The ill-feeling growing out of the fight between the whites and blacks living in the neighborhood of Thirty-ninth street and Ninth avenue is likely to keep the police of the West Thirty-seventh street station busy for months to come. The police think they have put a stop to the trouble, and perhaps they have, but the Blood of both sides is hot, and there is no telling when rioting may break out again.

The real fighting began on Monday and was due primarily to the race feeling existing between the whites and negroes in West Thirtyninth street, between Tenth and Eleventh ave nues. This particular block has been known for years as "Hell's Kitchen." The negroes and whites living there have always had trouble, the one party fearing that it would have to move out of the big tenements to make room

The young white toughs in the block object to the negroes playing ball in the street. The whites think they only have the right to play the game, and when the blacks play the whites gather around to jeer. When Carey Bates, a negro of 432 West Thirty-ninth street, began to play ball with some negro companions one day a week or so ago, the young white toughs annoyed the players. A little white girl was ceidentally struck with a ball thrown by Carey hates. A young white man threatened to take the ball and rip it open. A negro with a baseball but and a razor routed the white man. As the negroes then on the street outnumbered the whites the latter kept quiet.

Thereafter Bates had a hard life of it. As he got off a Tenth avenue car at rty-ninth street on Monday afternoon he was greeted with jeers, shouts of "Kill the nigger!" and with a shower of stones and other missiles. Bates pulled his revolver and shot overal times, wounding George Clark of 437 West Thirty-ninth street, one of his tormenters, a non-combatant truckman, William Mc-Graw of 531 West Thirty-ninth street, and the truckman's horse. Bates ran to escape the Graw of 531 West Thirty-ninth street, and the truckman's horse. Bates ran to escape the mob that had quickly gathered and was rescued by two policemen, taken to court and held for examination.

Naither of the wounded men was hurt badly, but the shooting had stirred up the fighting blood in earnest, and from that moment the whites in "Hell's Kitchen," who outnumber their negro neighbors, towed to "clean out the coons." When a negro showed himself in the street he was at once the target for curses and missiles. At 7 o'clock on Monday night the reserves of the West Thirty-seventh street police station were called out, but they found that the disturbance was at that time more the result of an attempt to annot the negroes than to do them actual harm.

A dozen or more young negroes bought revolvers that night at a store in Eighth avenue, and gathered in a hallway of a house on the south side of Thirty-ninth street. A gang of white men attacked them. They began to shoot and the crowd in the street scattered. One of the shots struck a white boy, James Carney, of 522 West Fortieth street, who died on Tuesday of his wound. The negroes ran toward the river, and on the way they were assailed by showers of stones, bricks, glass, and other missiles from the roots of the tenements and from the hands of their pursuers.

The reserves from the West Thirty-seventh police station were again summoned, and came out on the run with drawn clubs. They ran right down into the thickest of the fight in Thirty-ninth street, where there were a dozen fights going on. The policemen clubbed the street and the adjacent avenues clear for several blocks, but there were still a number of fighters, white and black, on the roofs. Detectives Boyle, Mahoney, Calhoun, and Maxen, with a squad of tan police under Boundsman McDonald, got to whe roof by entering the house at 630. They captured nine negroes. Twice as many escaped.

house at 530. They captured nine negroes. Twice as many escaped.

The patrol wagon was busy taking prisoners to the station house, and the pollecmen had hard work in keeping their prisoners out of the hands of the mob, which at this time included probably 3,000 people. An ambulance surgeon from Roosevelt Hospital patched up the wounded. One negro's jaw and arm were broken and another's skull was fractured by a flatfron.

Only three whites were arrested on Monday broken and another's skull was fractured by a flatiron.

Only three whites were arrested on Monday night. At 1 clock Tuesday morning things were quiet, and only a few policemen were left to take care of a possible outbreak. Many negroes were afraid to stay in such hot quarters, and more than a dozen families moved away.
At 11.39 on Tuesday night there were several fights in Thirty-ninth street. Very soon news got around that the colored colony in Forty-lists street, near Eighth avenue, had begun terrorizing the whites. Capt. Haipin went up to Forty-liras street and saw the extent of the trouble. Fully 4.000 people had gathered at and near the corner. Twenty negroes had taken refuge behind cobblestones, piled by workmen exavating for the Eighth avenue electric underground line, and there were some negroes in the trench made by the workmen.
Capt. Haipin got nearly a hundred men from his own precinct, under Sergeants Parkersen and Morgan; the reserves from the West Forty-his own precinct, under Sergeants Parkersen and Morgan; the reserves from the West Forty-seventh street station were sent down on the run under Roundsman Cagney, and the West Twentieth street station sent up 25 men under Eergeant Coffey. Before the reserves came there was some serious flighting. Negroes were pursued here and there by yelling crowds of young while men, who were egged on by a gang of pick pockets from Tenth avenue, out for business. The negroes, in most cases, ran, fleveral of them were badly wounded, and more than one just missed losing his life.

One nearro was escorted by a policeman to the Sixth avenue elevated station as Forty-second street on a horse car and was sent down-town. Others ran into cellars and basements. Others shot off revolvers and brandished rangers. Luckily no one was shot, although at least twenty shots were fired. Dwellers in the neighborhood locked their doors and windows. Detective Boyle was at Forty-first street and Eighth avenue when a little colored jockey named Ray ran up to him, chattering and trembling. Heryle took the jockey by the arm and shouting. He's all right; don't touch him," ran with him to Sixth avenue and got him out of harm's way.

Eleven prisoners were hustled into the patrol wagon just as the reserves came up, and within ton minutes ten more prisoners were in the appearance of the large body of policemen stopped all fighting for the time, although the neighborhood was not peaceful until 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

Most of the prisoners were negroes, and they were nearly all roughly handled by the police. Three negroes were taken from a basement where they lived for doing nothing but look shrough the window. One of these three. William Jefferson, was pulled out of bed and looked up. Three young whites were arrested. One of these is Michael Carney, brother of the wounded boy. James, who died at Roogevelt Hoppital white the worst of the fight of yesterday morning was going on. The other two were Thomas Baker of 402 West Thirty-eighth street and Robert Drennin of 402 West Thirty-eighth street. These, the police think, are the ingleaders of the gang.

There were in the West Side Court yesterday morning twenty-eight prisoners from the Twentieth precinct, most of them participants in the fight. Baker and Drennin were held in 14,500 ball for examination for inciting riot, does of the rest were fined either $5 or $10. It is said Baker is a prizofighter.

A real estate agent wrote a letter to Acting Mayor Guggenheimer yesterday saving that the negro residents of West Thirty-ninth street had been assaulted by gangs of white rowdles and driven from their homes. Morothau twenty colored families had been driven away, the writer said, and the hospitums who are persecuting them had declared that peace would not reign again until every negro was forced from the neighborhood. The real estate agent added that when the colored people appealed to the police they got elubbed for their trouble. The result is that they are without protection, and are describing the tenement houses in that block. Mayor Guggenheimer sent the letter to President York of the Police Board and asked him to investigate the complaint.

sent the letter to President York of the Police Board and asked him to investigate the complaint.

Inspector Walter Thompson entered the west Thirty-seventh street station at 6 o'clock leat night and said to Capt. Halpin that he thought it was about time for the Inspector to take hold. When the outgoing squad was assembled the Inspector made a short and emphatic speech.

"There is rioting in this precinct," he said. It is going to stop to hight. You men are going to stop it. If any man, black or white, acts in a disorderly or usily or suspicious manber on your post or on the post next to you, arrest him and being him to this station, dead or alive. Whateveryou do, I'll be responsible for it. The only thing I will not be restonable for it. The only thing I will not be restonable for that, and will have no mercy on you."

Besides the regular policemen, there were 100 extra men from the court squads and ten or fifteen Central Office detectives posted about the neighborhoad. At 8 a clock two policemen going through Thirty-minth street suw two neighborhoads for the neighborhoad and the neighborhoad for the neighborhoad and the neighborhoad. NEW COUNTERFEIT $10 NOTE.

Comparison of the Counterfeit with the Genuine Will Make Detection Basy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 .- A new counterfeit $10 Treasury note has been discovered. It is of the series of 1891, check letter C, plate No. 18, J Fount Tillman, Register; D. N. Morgan, Treas urer; portrait of Sheridan, small scalloped seal.

plates of fair workmanship on two pieces of paper, between which silk threads have been placed. The general appearance of the note is good. The numbering is dark red instead of carmine, as in the genuine. A number of bare white spots appear on the face and hair of the portrait. In the genuine the heavy flown strokes of the "W" in Washington, lower right face of the note, decreases at the top by short borisontal lines, similar to the cross line of the small letter "t." while in the counterfeit these horizontal lines only show on the left side of the down strokes. The letter "t" in Washington has a curled top in the genuine, while in the counterfeit the curl is missing. In lower left corner and face of counterfeit a spray of the ornamental work runs into the check letter. In the genuine she spray just touches the edge of the check letter. The period after "Beries of 1891," lower left face of counterfeit, touches the side of the check letter. The period after "Beries of 1891," lower left face of counterfeit, touches the "J" of the Register's signature, while there is a small space between the period and the letter of the genuine. The lathe work on the face of the counterfeit is good, but that on the back of the note is poor. The seal is good, both as to color and workmanship. The green ink is darker than the genuine.

The first specimen of the note was received from Mr. Francis Halpin, cashier of the Chemical National Bank of New York city. carmine, as in the genuine. A number of bare MILWAUREE, Wis., Aug. 3.-The body of a young woman, partly dressed, was washed upon the Government pier this morning, and indications point to a murder. About her waist, malcations point to a murder. About her waist, wrapped twice around, was a heavy chain, to which was attached a twenty-pound weight of the kind used for rowboat anchors. It was not possible to tell whether she had been killed before being thrown into the lake. There was no mark on her clothing to give a clue to her identity. It is thought that the body had probably been in the lake two months or more.

Well, Superintendent McCullagh made his final decision vesterday as to the appointment of a Deputy Superintendent, and selected Clarence H. Van Dusen. Mr. Van Dusen lives in Brooklyn. He was formerly a newspaper man. Then he held a place in the Brooklyn Board of Elections, and for a year or so he has been employed off and on in the departments at Albany. The appointment of Mr. Van Dusen was not made without more or less friction. The Brooklyn Republican organization, headed by Walter B. Atterbury and Michael J. Dady, filed an official protest. The Brooklyn Republican organisation recommended Alfred T. Hobley for the place. Every string possible was pulled to bring in Hobley as a winner. Mr. McCullagh was downtown yesterday morning consulting with Superintendent Payn and other Republi cans, and the whole matter was gone over Later Mr. McCullagh announced the appoint ment of Mr. Van Dusen. Superintendent McCullagh, under the law passed at the extraordinary session of the Legislature, has notified the Republican organization of New York city of the provisions of the law and requested the organization to recommend 300 election officers belonging to the Bepublican organization. President Quigg of the organisation has been in Wilmington attending the funeral of his father. He arrived in town last night, and for the next week or two will live at the Manhattan Beach Hotel, where many other Republicans are now stopping. President Guigg, as soon as he gets around to it, will send in the names of the 300. On or about Aug. 10 (under the law he must notify the organizations not later than Aug. 15 Superintendent McCullagh will notify Tammany Hall that the Tammany organization is entitled to the seiscition of 300 election officers and will request Tammany to send in its nominations. There has been some talk that Tammany would refuse to recognize the constitutionality of the Metropolitan Elections law and refuse to eend in its nominations of the 300. Most of this talk has come from Disariet Attorney Asa Bird Gardiner. Richard Croker and Mayor Van Wyck had a long talk in Mr. Croker's downtown office. 111 Broadway, yesterday morning, and later Mr. Croker said that nothing would be done about the nominations of the 300 until the Law Committee of Tammany Hall had mgt. This committee must meet before Aug. 16.

Superintendent McCullagh will give Tammany every opportunity to name its 300, and if it does not be will act under the provisions of the law, which says:

"Any vacanny occurring by disqualification of otherwige shall be filled by the appointment of the organisation has been in Wilmingto

Any vacancy occurring by disqualification or otherwise shall be filled by the appointment of a qualified person named in a supplemental list filled on behalf of the same party, except that if a party entitled to representation files no original list, nor a supplemental list after notice, the appointment may be made without such lists, and without nomination.

That is, if Tammany does not file its list of 300 Superintendent McCullagh will select 300 other Democrats, and he has no doubt that he will be shie to find 300 eager to obey the provisions of the law at $5 a day for thirty days.

DEVERY USURPED POWER.

Could Not Transfer Hildenbrand-A Mile Bebuke from the Police Board.

The case of Police Sergeant Henry Hilden-Elections to Staten Island last Friday, took on new interest yesterday because of an interview with Commissioner Jake Hess on the subject, Commissioner Sexton, as reported in yesterday's Sun, said the cause of removal was that Hildenbrand was "trying to do some monkey business with McCullagh." There are those in Mulberry street who believe that the transfer of Hildenbrand may be the cause of a split in the Police Board and the antagonizing of Chief the Police Board and the antagonizing of Chief Devery by the Republican members of that body. At any rate, Hildenbrand's punishment was lessened yesterday, when in accordance with a resolution passed by the board on Tuesday. Other Devery transferred him from Staten Island to the Dolancey street station.

The resolution in question reads as follows:
The report of the Chief haying been received in reference to Sergeant Henry Hildenbrand and Patroiman George V. Kass.

"Resolved, That said Bergeant Henry Hildenbrand by transferred from service in the Bureau of Elections and remanded to duty in a precinct in the borough of Manhattan or of the Bronx, and the detailment of said Kass to the Bureau of Elections is resoluded, and he is remanded to patrol duty."

Chief Devery's report simply stated that the transfers had been made, no reason being given.

In speaking of the matter Commissioner
Hess said:
The chief made the transfer without consulting the Commissioners. I did not, at least, know anything about it until the report of the chief was made to the board. The chief evidently was not familiar with the charter, for he had no right to make that transfer. It is the dently was not familiar with the charter, for he had no right to make that transfer. It is the province of the board to detail men to the Election Bureau." Commissioner Hees said he did not know whether the board would put Hildenbrand back in the Election Bureau or not.

Fourteen policemen, including one doorman, one roundsman, and twelve patrolmen, were retired from the force yesterds on account of age, disability and other reasons. There were also a large number of transfers among patrolmen and roundsmen.

Mr. McLaughlin is a great favorite with the Jamesport people and he received a warm welcome on his arrival there on Tuesday evening It was noticeable that he had aged considerably since his visit there a year ago and that he did since his visit there a year ago and that he did not walk with the same firm step as formerly. It is confidently expected, however, that his health will soon be fully restored by the exhibitanting breezes of Feconic Bay. With Mr. McLaughlin are his wife and daughter Laura. Mrs. William J. Courtney, his other daughter, and his little granddaughter, Gracs Carroll. Judge John Courtney and his family are also guests at the house. Most of the Democratic district leaders in Brocklyn have made arrangements to visit Mr. McLaughlin during his stay at Jamesport, but in view of his rather enfected condition they will defer their call until near the close of the month.

It is said that ex-benator David B. Hill may pay his respects next Sunday or Monday, coming over in a steam yacht from Normandie-by-the-Bea. The conference, so it is generally understood, may have an important effect on State politics. Although Mr. McLaughlin is credited with an carnest desire for harmony and an obliteration of all factionalism in the organization, there is no doubt whatever that many things have been done and many other things left undone under the new municipal administration in the government of the borough of Brooklyn which do not tend to strengthen his friendship for Blohard Croker and the other Tammany magnates. In fact, to a few of his close friends he has trequently expressed a sense of personal disappointment at the treatment he has received. not walk with the same firm step as formerly.

REED ON PROSPERITY. He Says It Was Coming in Full Swing When

ALPRED, Me., Aug. 3 .- Congressman Thomas B. Beed attended the York County Republican onvention here to-day, and in the afternoon he and Gov. Powers addressed 4,000 people The Governor confined his remarks almost entirely to State issues. Mr. Reed spoke twenty minutes. He first referred to his prediction of two years ago that prosperity was as sure to come as the sun to shine, and said:

Why is it we have not come into a full meas are of prosperity? The reason is plain. The Republican party had done its full duty up to the first part of April to start a revival of in dustrial prosperity. Then came the preparation for war. Prosperity was waiting for us and its coming was only postponed. You and I know that when a nation sees fit to go to war. the war must be attended to promptly and at once. The Government's wants in this case the war must be attended to promptly and at once. The Government's wants in this case were attended to promptly and at once, and everything else had to be laid aside.

"The history of the last months shows clearly that the war was attended to promptly. The valor of our soldiers and the splendid ability of our naval forces have permitted us to rise above our enemies in a measure almost miraculous. The war has enriched our history by great events which may repay us for what we have undergone. At the time when war seemed imminent, we were arranging to export many millipas of tons of steel from ore dug from the bowels of the earth and manufactured by the skill and industry of our people. The years of adversity were not lost on us. When we were unable to manufacture pig iron and dispose of it at $12, we determined to make it for $8. With every industry it was the same—what we used to make for a dollar we make now for half a dollar.
"In the next period of prosperity we shall make for our own people many things the outside world furnished us thirty years ago, before Republican rule. Some critics complain that our revenues are not now what should be expected. Why is it that less revenue is being produced than before? Because revenue comes from imports, no imports no tariff revenues. You and I are making things now which England used to make and soil to us. That is one problem we have got to meet in the future. Our very prosperity will have to deal with different conditions than ever before. I am confident we will go forward in the same rule founded on the intelligence of the people."

SENATOR FAIRBANKS PRESIDES AT THE STATE CONVENTION

ard, but Is Silent on the Subject of Ter-ritorial Expansion—Annexation of Hawaii Approved — Praise for the President. INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 3.—The Republican State afternoon at which United States Senator Fairbanks was Chairman and made a two-hours' speech. He dwelt particularly upon the tariff and the questions that have come out of the war, but did not take a stand for or against extension of territory. It was the purpose of the convention to adopt the platform which had been approved by the State Central Committee at a previous meeting, but the speech of the permanent chairman was so long that the convention could not get further than the report of the Committee on Organization. The platform had gotten out of the hands of the committee and appeared in an afternoon paper while the convention was meeting, and the delegates will have time to digest it before it is presented and adopted to-morrow. Much of the document is devoted to State issues. President McKinley is praised generously, the Dingley tariff is indorsed, and just and liberal

President McKinley is praised generously, the Dingley tariff is indorsed, and just and liberal pensions are approved. On the other questions the platform says:

"The Republicans of Indiana are unreservedly for sound money, and are, therefore, opposed to the heresy to which the Democratio party is wedded—of the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at the ratio of 18 to 1—which we regard as absolutely certain to debase our money and destroy our private and public credit and causs general business disaster. We recognize the necessity of comprehensive and enlightened monetary legislation, and we believe that the declaration in the St. Louis National Republican platform for the maintenance of the gold standard and the parity of all our forms of money should be given the vitality of public law, and the money of the American people should be made like all its institutions—the best in the world.

Having achieved its manhood, the Republic, under God, is entering upon its greatest period of power, happiness, and responsibility. Realizing the mighty future of wealth, prosperity, and duty which is even now upon us, we favor the extension of American trade; the reformation of our consular service accordingly; the encouragement by all legislative means of the American merchant marine; the overation of a navy as powerful as our commerce shall be extensive, and for public defence and security, and the establishment of coaling stations and naval rendexyous wherever necessary.

"We most heartly approve the wisdom of scartty, and the establishment of coaling stations and naval rendezvous wherever necessary.

"We most heartily approve the wisdom of the annexation of the Hawalian Islands as a wise measure, and recommend the early construction of the Nicarangan Canal under the immediate direction and exclusive control of the United States Government, the importance and necessity of the canal having been emphasized by recent events connected with the present war with Spain.

"We favor the enactment and enforcement of inwa restricting and preventing the immigration of such undesirable foreign population as is prejudicial to free American labor."

Interest is still centring largely in the context for Auditor of State, but the arrival of full delegations from the country districts to-day seems to enhance the chances of Capt. Hart, and the indications are that Henry will be defeated, largely on account of the efforts that Lafoliette has made for him. Hart's friends have been indefatigable in airing Lafoliette's financial schemes, and country delegates seem really embittered toward Henry and his backers.

Poynter is a farmer from Boone county and was one of the founders of the Farmers Alliance. He has twice been a member of the Legislature and was the father of some of the wildood stockness of the Populist party in 1880.

The Populist platform demands the initiative and referendum as a constitutional amendment, and Government ownership of railroads and telegraphs; favors the Populist scheme of a north and south railroad; wants more pay for private soldiers, and demands the passage of alaw prohibiting the issuance of free passes except to bona fide railway employees and public officers. The Democratic Convention sent the following telegram to Bryan:

"Col. W. J. Bryan, Jacksenville, Fla.:

"The Democrats of Nebruska, in convention assembled, instruct me to send hearty greeting and pledge their united efforts to make the galiant Colonel of the Third the future Commander-in-Chief."

The Gold Democrats will poil from two to four thousand votes, and it is probable that they will be advised to vote the Republican State ticket.

BURGLAR'S STORY OF A ROBBERT. Pare Says That 832,000 Was Stolen from the Napance Bank with the Teller's Help. TOBONTO, Aug. 3.—George Edward Pare, a burglar, testified to-day at the hearing in the The Platform Declares for the Gold Stand-Napanee Bank burglary case at Napanee. In this case the teller of the bank, a young man of good family named William Ponton, is accused of complicity in the robbery.

Pare said that three men named Holden. Mackie and Roach planned the robbery, but could not execute it, and therefore sent for him. They proposed to have a hold-up with pistols and black masks, but he vetoed that project and arranged to effect the burglary with the aid of Ponton. The latter kept them to the amount of money in the bank, and on the Holden met in Ponton's room, and from there went to the bank and stole $22,000 in good money and $10,000 in unsigned bills. Fonton got $5,000 of the plunder as a preferential claim and then ranked with the others in the division.

claim and then ranked with the others in the division.

On cross-examination Pare admitted that he went by the names of Howard, Bellinger, Bobier and Old George, and had served many torms in prison. He said he enlisted in the Union Army in 1881 and served three years. After his discharge he began stealing in Montreal and had been stealing for thirty years. He acknowledged writing a letter from Montreal to Ponton's lawyer wanning him that a conspiracy was being formed against the teller by Montreal crocks in connection with certain detectives. Pare was arrosted at Manchester, N. H. and on his confession Holden was caught at Boston.

Among Ponton's friends there is a strong belief in his innocence. He was arrested shortly after the robbery and discharged by the Magiatrate. Thereupon he brought suit against the bank for $50.000 damages. The suit is still pending, the bank having applied to have the hearing in Toronto, as Ponton was certain to get a verdict in his own district.

For four hours they remained obdurate, withdrawing C. J. Smyth whom they had previously nominated, and naming Edgar Howard. The only answer of the Populists was to indorse Poynter unanimously. Their attitude angered the Democrats, and for a time there was a prospect of two reform tickets in Nebraska. The leaders with ambitions finally arranged matters, and about 7 A.
